¹ EPA believes the OIG erroneously included one facility -- the Sterigenics Santa Teresa Facility in New Mexico -- in its report. EPA clearly noted in its NATA documentation that this facility installed a control device and had reduced ethylene oxide emissions by 83% between 2014 and 2016- prior to the NATA release. No further technical assessment or public outreach is believed necessary at this time. See https://www.epa.gov/sit/troduction/1iles/2018-08/documents/2014jtjia,jpdates_to_emissions.pdf

We would like Doug to be able to send this tomorrow, so a quick review would be great. Please make changes using RLSO. You will note that there is some strikethrough in this document; that is deliberate.

Thanks.
